Just a personal note of congratulations and thanks for the excellent seminar you sponsored today on Working Parents. I found it very informative and encouraging.

Your panelists deserve special thanks for sharing their personal experiences--a difficult but very generous thing to do--to help and encourage others. They represented a broad spectrum of situations in an articulate fashion. Each one is obviously a very accomplished individual making significant contributions, on both the home and work fronts.

For obvious reasons, I'm also going to drop a note to [redacted]

Thanks again,
